DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: The specification makes reference to claim 1 and 2 by using the claim numbers. This is improper because the scope of the claims may change throughout prosecution making the reference to the claims in the specification invalid.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 3 recites the limitation "the flexible member" in lines 1-2. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rucky (USPN 3330498).

Rucky teaches an equal width strip (10) having a handle (front end of strip is handle—not shown). There is a reel body (23) having a rotary member (30) to which a rear end of the strip is attached and reeling in or playing out the strip body to or from the rotary member by rotating this rotary member.

With regards to claim 2, the strip body is made from a flexible member (col. 1, lines 45-47).

With regards to claim 3, the flexible member is a rubber member (col. 1, lines 45-47).

Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Brown (USPN 5030031).

Brown teaches an equal width strip (10) having a handle (front end of strip is handle—not shown). There is a reel body (16) having a rotary member (middle portion of reel) to which a rear end of the strip is attached and reeling in or playing out the strip body to or from the rotary member by rotating this rotary member.

With regards to claim 2, the strip body is made from a flexible member (figure 1 shows that the strip is flexible).

Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Schmale et al. (USPN 2704190).

Schmale teaches an equal width strip (10) having a handle (11). There is a reel body (15-20) having a rotary member (29) to which a rear end of the strip is attached (13) and reeling in or playing out the strip body to or from the rotary member by rotating this rotary member.

Art Unit: 3723

With regards to claim 2, the strip body is made from a flexible member (the strip is inherently flexible to be wrapped around the reel as shown in figure 1).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schmale ('190) in view of Rucky ('498).

Schmale teaches all the essential elements of the claimed invention however fails to teach that the strip is made from a rubber material. The strip of Schmale is a hose and it is well known in the art that hoses can be made from a rubber material, which is further exemplified by Rucky who clearly teaches a rubber hose (col. 1, lines 45-47). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the hose of Schmale so that it is made from rubber as taught by Rucky since it has been held within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious engineering choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.
